IN THE FOURTH VIRGINIA. The Chances Are in Favor of the Democratic Candidate.

Special Correspondence of The Evening Star. PETERSBURG, Va., October 15, 1894. The congressional election is just about three weeks off, and in the fourth congressional district of Virginia the livelies interest is felt as to the result. Mr. Wm. R. McKenney of this city is the democratic candidate, and Mr. R. T. Thorp of Mecklenburg county is his republican opponent.
At the populist congressional convention, held at Blackstone some weeks ago, Col. Thomas Goode was nominated as the con-gressic nai candidate of that party from this district, but he has since declined to accept the nomination, and therefore they have no candidate in the field. The popu-lists wanted Maj. Mann Page to run as their candidate, but he positively refused to do so. The impression, as far as can be learned, is that the "pops" will have no candidate, and the congressional race will therefore be between McKenney and Thorp, didate, and the congressional race will therefore be between McKenney and Thorp, worn or out of style—N) excuse, at above prices, for being without a good serviceable Bicycle Lamp. ### WILSON'S DISTRICT

The Situation as It Appears Through Democratic Eyes.

NOT PUTTING OUT ANY FIGURES

Danger to the Democracy in the Coal Region.

WITH THE CAMPAIGNERS

MANNINGTON, W. Va., October 15, 1884. This dispatch is to be a statement of the political situation in Congressman William L. Wilson's district from the democratic point of view. The hectic flush of hope upon the democratic cheek will be portrayed, the aims and aspirations of the party managers outlined, their fears revealed and an effort will be made to explain to the readers of The Star just how the campaign managers feel about the outcome of the November election. The republican outlook will form the basis of another chap-

It has been the purpose of the writer to endeavor to obtain a correct idea of the situation, not by interviews with the leaders "for publication," such as are innocently given for the good of the cause, when oversanguine views are expressed to the press by politicians, who put on rose-colored glasses for the occasion, but through plain, matter-of-fact talks with well-posted men, who consented for the time to lay aside dissimulation and speak frankly. Ex-Gov. Fleming, Serator Camden, State Chairman McGraw and the many local managers are he sources of the information upon which the writer bases his statements, all of these gentlemen being at present engaged in furthering the interests of Congressman Wilson in the campaign, and working in this portion of the district.

To Let No Man Escape. No better summary of the situation could be found than the statement of one of these men, who said: "We are working on the supposition that we cannot afford to lose one vote. We are claiming nothing except that Mr. Wilson will be re-elected, consequently, we refrain from venturing prophecies as to majorities." The idea that every vote will be needed and that they cannot afford to let a single man get away is being thoroughly impressed upon the boys, and a spirit of etermination on their part is the fruit of it. Everywhere among the active workers in the campaign is evidenced the feeling that they have a hard fight before them, and that they must be up and doing in order to win it. principal object of the campaigners now is to try to instill some of this spirit into the masses of the democracy, and that is just where the trouble is coming in. That state of being most dreaded by the politician, apathy, exists to a marked degree in this district, and is a source of worry to the managers. It would be too difficult to attempt to analyze the cause of the apathy existing among the voters, but it would be apparent to even the most superficial ob-server that it does exist. It is said to be a hard natter to get the people out, to induce them to attend the meetings, although when they do come they can be warmed into en-thusiasm. The power of that same mag-netic oratory which thrilled gallery-full audiences in the House of Representatives and held by its charm the attention of a solid House when William L. Wilson spoke is still potent and works its spell upon crude assemblages as well as cultured.

Mr. Wilson's Personal Popularity. It seems to be apparent from the tone of he people that the personal popularity of Mr. Wilson will atone for a multitude of faults in the democratic administration. There is no gainsaying the fact that he is beloved by his people with affection passing the admiration of a constituency proud of its statesman. Let no one believe that hese plain country people, a though remote from the centers of business and political affairs, are unaware of his record in recent events. Somehow the knowledge of it has percolated all these mountain hamlets, as well as railroad towns, and if the common people do not understand all the phases of the case they have an intuition of the truth that he has stood their fair champion of the cause for which they sent him to Congress six terms. Today he met a gathering of 800 or 1,000 men, the majority of them from the surrounding country pre-cincts, and the great shout of welcome that went up when he faced his audience had affection and loyalty in every note. To-night the local managers are raising their estimates of a democratic majority upon the strength of the turn-out.

Something About the District. Mr. Wilson's district is an immense one in point of area and contains fifteen large ccunties. It extends from the neighborhood of Harper's Ferry along the entire northern end of the state, sweeping northwestward and pushing close to the Ohio river. ward and pushing close to the Ohio river. The shape of the district is liable to arouse the suspicion that it has been gerrymandered; in fact, that idea naturally suggests itself. The elements of population are as varied as the natural scenery of the different counties. The farmers are in the majority, but there are 4000 voters in the ent counties. The farmers are in the majority; but there are 4,000 voters in the mining region, 1,500 in the lumber section and a considerable number representing men employed in the oil region and in various industrial pursuits. He has several large towns in his district, and the whole section is thriving, busy and wide awake—a country whose industries are growing and expanding in every direction. Thus he has all sorts and conditions of men to whom to all sorts and conditions of men to whom to administer his democratic doctrines. There is an element inherent in the population which furnishes a constant spawning ground for democracy, consisting of the old rock-ribbed democrats of the Virginia commonwealth stock, who derived their de-mocracy from the Jeffersonian source direct and have infused it into each succeeding generation. On the other hand, there is a constantly increasing offset to this elemen to be found in the new population, which is pouring in from Pennsylvania to develop the industries of the state. This is especially noticeable in the oil belt. The majority of these people are republicans and come with their own ideas deeply rooted. In Marion county, it is said, these newcomers have leavened the old loaf in a lively manner—so much so, in fact, that the democrats will be glad to come out even on the vote in this

How the Campaign is Waged. With such a composite population it is easy to see that there are great possibilities for overturning majorities and changing the political complexion of counties and towns. The campaign, therefore, is being conducted in a manner to suit the circumstances of in a manner to suit the circumstances of the case. The fight is made on the tariff, on finances, the income tax, the general record of the party, or on whatever life may seem best suited for the particular locality and the interests involved. The democrats control a staff of able orators, and are making spellbinding a signal feat-ure of their campaign. No complaint is made of scarcity of funds, and it is thought that liberal financial aid is being rendered. him.

It is a noticeable fact, and commented upon on every side, that the republicans are conducting a more quite campaign than their opponents. The republicans appear to be on a still-hunt for their game, saying little, making but few demonstrations, yet apparently there is an energetic movement under the surface. The democrats are inclined to be worried about this crusade in the dark, as they call it, for they cannot believe there is that indifference to the outcome which the enemy appears to simulate.

What the Democrata Fear What the Democrats Fear.

The democratic maragers are apprehensive of a hostile movement through the vote of the coal miners. This is the first time the question of a reduction in the tariff has been brought home to the miners, and there are grave doubts as to how they will re ceive Mr. Wilson's action upon that schedceive Mr. Wilson's action upon that schedule. There are rumors of a strong combination against Wilson by the coal operators, and some venture the prophecy that trouble is brewing in that direction, which will be precipitated at about the last moment. There is also some danger of populist gains, and although they would probably not be very large, they would doubtless be made at the expense of the democrats, and under the prevailing idea entertained by the best posted men of both sides that the majority, whether republican or democratic, will not whether republican or democratic, will not be large, a defection of a few hundred would be greatly deplored.

The Meet at Mannington. Congressman Wilson and Judge Mansus addressed a large audience here today, the attendance far exceeding that upon the occasion of the speech of ex-Secretary Elkins for the republicans last week. The local democrats are making capital out of the fact that Mr. Elkins campaigns in his private car, surrounded with luxury, while Mr. Wilson travels with the boys in the smoker, and takes pot luck at the taverns. This is cited as an instance of "the man of the recopic as against the creature of corporations and monopolies." Tomorrow Mr. Wilson makes his first appearance in the coal region, which same is expected to be a very interesting event. N. O. M.

NORTH CAROLINA POLITICS

Republicans Said Not to Relish Fusion With Populists.

The Democrats Figuring on a Major ity of 20,000 Over All-Much Feeling Shown.

Correspondence of The Evening Star.

RALEIGH, N. C., October 14, 1894. The fact appears to be admitted that the national republican committee is sending no funds to North Carolina for use in this campaign. Chairman Holton of the state committee said he did not propose to ask for a cent unless he saw a good prospect of success. The allegation is that the national committee made a close calculation on this basis. The 1888 vote for Harrison was 134,000, and in 1892 only about 100,000, showing that of the vote cast by the populists for Weaver in 1892 about 34,000 was drawn from the republican party. The democrats contend that the vote this time should be 150,000 demoeratic, 139,000 fusion.

The livliest congressional campaign is, perhaps, in the fifth district, where there are now four candidates, these being Set-Merritt, populist. The latter was nominated only last week. Amis devotes himself to abuse of Settle. He wanted the port, but he writes here that there is positively no foundation for the rumor. The straight-out republicans thereupon issued an address, in which they urge their followers to vote for Milliken. In fact, the light between the fusion and anti-fusion republicans is, or seems to be, warm.

This is a queer campaign, and much that is apparently sincere needs to be distrusted. There was never more tricky political campaign work, not even when Senator Quay's nephew came here disguised as a music teacher and instructor in stenography. Democrats on the Stump.

The democrats are putting in the field every available man. The republicans are reaking a clamor because among the democratic speakers are the two revenue collectors, and also because Josephus Daniels. the chief clerk of the Department of the Interior, is coming to North Carolina to make a few speeches, The populists are angry at everything that does not go just their way. Their newspapers declare that the new silver dollars "of the vintage of 1894," which are being quite freely circulated in this state, being quite freely circulated in this state, were sent here for political effect.

The republicans do not carry on their tickets, as printed in their papers, the name of Oliver H. Dockery as their congressional nominee in the sixth district. He has made no written statement as to withdrawal, but has verbally declined, and, it is alleged, will help Rev. Charles H. Martin, the populist nominee. Dockery

Martin, the populist nominee. Dockery says he proposes to take an active part in the campaign So much mixed are matters in the fusion ranks that neither the chairman of the pop-ulists nor the republicans can furnish a correct and complete list of the nominees of their respective parties for Congressmen, judges and solicitors. The populists have in most cases indorsed the republican nominees for superior court judges and solici-tors; indeed, so far as your correspondent can discover they have not to this date in-dorsed a single one of the men the demo-crats have put the for these positions. crats have put up for those positions, though they have talked ceaselessly about a "non-partisan judiciary" and declared their purpose to indorse with that end in

It was said that the populists or perhaps the republicans wanted to get the name of Walter Clark off the supreme court ticket. Your correspondent asked W. H. Worth fusion nominee for state treasurer, thought this rumor was true; Mr. Worth said he did not.

Republicans Don't Like It.

Looking behind the scenes a little your correspondent gets the idea that in their hearts the republicans have little real relish for fusion. They appear to be halfhearted. The populists are far more enthusiastic as to the new combination. They have been led on to this by Marion Butler their state chairman. Fusion is his hobby. He has borne down any opposition. He is the dictator of populist policy. There are many of the democrats who say that the fusion of their opponents is the very best thing for democratic success. There are others who say cadidly that they fear fusion. The latter are doing all they can to sow and premote discord. It is alleged by some of the republicans that the negro vote is the deciding one this year, and that the contest is as to who shall get it. Populists and republicans are to a certain ex ists and republicans are to a certain ex-tent suspicious of each other. The populist work is being done mainly in the "back country." away from the towns, and it is hard work, which is feared by the demo-crats, who know it is being done.

A negro politician who was here a few days ago asserted that in only twelve out of seventy-five counties had the negroes in-dersed fusion. But he is an "anti" and his statement must be taken with a grain of statement must be taken with a grain of salt. Some independent republican tickets are being put up here and there in the counties and it is alleged that these will counties and it is alleged that these will get a considerable negro vote.

In the seventh district yesterday it is said that some populists, at one of the joint discussions, behaved very rudely toward Congressman John S. Henderson, the democratic nominee. The friction between the populists and democrats is extremely great. They hate each other. The democrats express the utmost contempt for the populists, rating them far below the republicans. This feeling is even worse than it was in feeling is even worse than it was i

CAMPAIGNING IN OHIO

Republicans Said to Be Anxious About Grosvenor's District.

FREE SILVER AND THE DEMOCRACY

How Mr. Thurman Has Embarrassed Some of His Party.

MR. OUTHWAITE'S CHANCES

COLUMBUS, Ohio, October 14, 1894.

Correspondence of The Evening Star.

It is very evident that the republican state committee is afraid Congressman Chas. H. Grosvenor may be defeated in the eleventh district. All of the prominent republican speakers from outside the state that have been called into the Ohio campaign have been assigned for at least one speech in Gen. Grosvenor's district, and some of them have given all the time they had to spend in this state to work there. Congressman Boulette of Maine, who comes here this week to make five speeches, will make four of them in the eleventh district. Ex-Governor Ira J. Chase of Indiana and Judge A. L. Morriscn of New Mexico, who are here making speeches in the Ohio campaign, will also go to Grosvenor's district. This district was cut cut in the republican gerrymander to be a reliably republican one, and even in the great republican defeat two years ago was carried by the republicans by 2,651 votes. Last fall Governor McKinley carried it by 5,857 votes, so that it would seem that Grosvenor is safe enough this year. The district, however, embraces the heart of the great Hocking valley coal min-ing region, and has, it is estimated, about 6,000 miners who are voters. However these miners have voted in the past, it is pretty certain now that they will vote the straight populist ticket this year. If the democrats in the district had been shrewd enough to indorse the populist nominee—James A. Crawford—Grosvenor's defeat would have been a foregone conclusion. As it stands, Crawford, the populist nominee, has a much better chance of being elected than E. R. Lash, the democratic candidate.

With the normal republican plurality of at least 3,500 in his favor, the general dissension that exists among the democrats everywhere and the opposition divided between the populists and democrats, there does not seem to be on the face of the situation any reason way General Gross. does not seem to be on the face of the situation any reason why General Gros-venor should be uneasy about the election in his district. And yet he evidently is, He is probably now realizing the fact that by his very radical republicanism through all his pelitical life he has made it very easy for himself to make enemies and hard to win friends in the democratic party.

Mr. Outhwaite's Chances.

The situation in the capital district seems to have turned against Mr. Outhwaite in the last week. He has always been able to draw to his support a large element of the republican party here that belongs to the business classes. His conservative course in Congress made it possible for these persons to support him, and business relations made it desirable for them to do so. A movement is now on foot in this city, however, to secure the support of this element for D. K. Watson, Mr. Outhwaite's opponent. A similar movement, on two oc-casions, has resulted in the election of David F. Pugh to the common pleas bench in this county on the republican ticket, tle, republican; Graham, democrat; Rufus though the democrats carried everything Amis, independent republican, and William else. If Watson can carry this county by else. If watson can carry this county by 500 votes he will be elected to Congress, for Fairfield, the other county of the district, cannot possibly give more than 400 democratic plurality.

The whole situation considered, it now straight republican nomination, but got very few votes.

There were current a few days ago rumors that Milliken, republican nominee for Congress in the fourth-district, was about Congress in the fourth-district, was about congressional congressional computations.

The whole situation considered, it now looks as though the congressional election here would be very close, with the chances slightly against Mr. Outhwalte. It is announced, with apparent reliability, that the result is congressional computation. republican national congressional commit-tee has agreed to come to Mr. Watson's aid very liberally in this district. If this is so, then one disadvantage under which Watson would otherwise labor will be removed, for, compared with Mr. Outhwaite, he is a poor man. The republicans of Ohio generally take an interest in the congressional campaign in the capital district, not only because Mr. Outhwaite, the democratic can-didate, is prominent in the councils of his party, but because this is, for the time at least, the home of Governor McKinley.

Hampered by Silver. Chairman Allen W. Thurman's free silver proclamation has put many of the democratic candidates for Congress in a very embarrassing position. Tom Johnson and Mr. Outhwaite, after voting for the bill repealing the silver purchasing act, and putting themselves on record repeatedly as being opposed to the free coinage of silver, find themselves placed abruptly, and with no opportunity for protest, upon a free silver platform. Anti-free silver democrats anti-free silver press are swallowing their indignation for the most part during the campaign.

After the campaign is over there will be, no doubt, a very general and very free ex-pression of opinion by the democrats and democratic press opposed to free silver. The German democratic press in the state is not refraining now from expressing its dissatis-faction with Chairman Thurman's course, and the Westbote, the local German news paper, is specially severe in its criticism of the free silver address issued by the democratic state executive committee.

Chairman Thurman has had an enormous number of copies of his free silver circular printed and forwarded them to the county committee chairmen for distribution as campaign literature. They have not found in every instance a warm welcome. Chair-man Byron Stilwell of the Holmes county committee returned the whole shipment to Chairman Thurman, with the curt note that while the Holmes county democrats were mostly in favor of free silver, when the time came to advocate it, they thought the main issue was still the tariff question, and they proposed to fight that matter to a finish before taking ways any characteries. finish before taking up any other question.

Mr. Thurman's View of It. In a talk before the Thurman Club last evening Chairman Thurman expressed himself more fully upon the political outlook in Onio than he had done since he was placed in charge of the democratic campaign. The general apathy that was noted on the part of the democrats at the time the state convention was held, he said to the club, was disappearing. Almost before his committee was organ-

Almost before his committee was organized and prepared to receive them, the iemocrats in the counties were sending in polls of their counties, which they had made on their own accord. These polls, which have row been received from a large number of the counties, were to him very encouraging. He was reliably advised that the democratic farmers of the state who had gone off to the populists had generally returned to the old party since the state convention had put the free silver plank in the plathad put the free silver plank in the plat-form; so that if the democrats could hold their voters in line in the cities, and secure a full registration, there would be no reaa full registration, there would be no rea-son to fear a detection from the old voting strength of the Ohio democracy. As to the congressional situation in the state he said there was no democratic candidate in any district supposed to be democratic normally that was in any danger of defeat, except Mr. Johnson, in the twenty-first. This dis-trict, he explained, was in bad shape. The rict, he explained, was in bad shape. The Cleveland Plain Dealer was opposing him, and a large element of the labor vote that went to him two years ago would not do so this time. He very much doubted Mr. Johnson's election. Mr. Outhwaite, he said, would be returned to Congress with little trouble.

Chairman Thurman said the only speakers who would be brought to this district dur-ing the campaign, so far as he then knew, were ex-Gov. Campbell and J. W. Thomas, were ex-Gov. Campbell and J. W. Thomas, democratic candidate for governor of Colorado. This contradicts a story that has been current here for the last two weeks, to the effect that Senator Jones, who has recently left the republican party to join the populists, would be invited to Ohlo by Chairman Thurman, to speak in behalf of free silver.

the following statement for publication regarding the matter:

"I have been kept away from home so "I have been kept away from home so much by the political honors I have received and the public services I have performed that now, at my age, the wire edge of ambition is worn off. My army service, my work in Congress, my seat in the state senate, and the other features of my public career, together with my law practice, have consumed so many years that it would now be most to my taste to spend the remainder of my life quietly with my family. Within the last several months, however, many of my friends throughout the state have manifested a very emphatic desire to have manifested a very emphatic desire to have me become the next nominee of my farty for the governorship. So decided has been this sentiment that I could not pass it unheeded, and I now believe that if it continues to select the sentiment of the sentiment of the sentiment that I could not pass it unheeded. tinues to exist until the proper time I will accede to the wishes of my friends. A GLANCE AT KANSAS. The Campaign at White Heat-Weighing the Chances.

Special Correspondence of The Evening Star. TOPEKA, Kan., October 12, 1894 The campaign in Kansas is at white heat, and during the rext thirty days the republicans and populists will hold at least five hundred meetings in the state. The prairies will be ablaze with enthusiasm, and every country school house will be used for a neighborhood rally, and every voter will be visited to see if he has wavered under the pressure of the red-hot campaign which has been in progress during the past sixty

If the election was held now the republicans would elect their state ticket. During the past two weeks accessions have been numerous to that party from former populists. Everything depends upon the closing three weeks of the campaign. If the fervor ard enthusiasm which now prevails throughout the state for the republican ticket continues the plurality over the populists may reach 40 000. It will require a landshife for reach 40,000. It will require a landslide for the populists to win, and that is now con-sidered an impossibility. The fight is centered in the congressional and legislative districts. Within ten days a great change has been manifested in the first district, and unless the tide toward first district, and unless the tide toward Judge Solomon is checked Congressman Broderick may be beaten. Solomon is the democratic-populist candidate, and is solidi-fying both parties in a remarkable degree. The republicans are scared and fear Solomon will win. In any event, the contest mon will will. In any event, the contest will be close.

The republicans are making a desperate effort to defeat Jerry Simpson, but the chances are in his favor. Gov. McKinley was taken to Hutchinson, 250 miles, in Simpson's district, and he had a wonderful treasuled. Factors traveled by research. Simpson's district, and he had a wonderful reception. Farmers traveled by wagon and on horseback ninety miles to see him. His visit greatly enthused the republicans, but Simpson is going over his district, sick though he is, and is being received by im-mense audiences. Populists figure his majority at 1,000.

In the second, fourth and third the republicans feel confident of success. The second and fourth will give the republicans from 3,000 to 5,000 each, but the third will be close. In the fifth and sixth the battle is so animated and the vote so close that neither party gives any estimates of the probable majorities. Both populists and republicans claim the legislature, and are massing their forces in the forty close districts. A Rare Chance for Plano Buyers. An unusual opportunity to purchase planos at tempting prices is offered by the retirement from business of Mrs. H. L. Sumner, who for twenty-four years has been sole manager and business agent for the celebrated Hallet & Davis planos, at Keifer's New Ambition.

Ex-Speaker of the National House of Representatives J. Warren Keifer is now a full-fledged candidate for the republican nomination for governor, as predicted he was full-fledged in The Star two weeks ago. While in Columbus this week Gen. Keifer made
